Chelsea Biemiller focuses her practice on complex civil litigation, representing corporate and institutional clients in a wide variety of business litigation matters, including construction matters, employment and labor, educational issues, civil rights and state government litigation.

Her client representation includes:

- successfully defending clients in trials and arbitrations
- assisting with all aspects of complex litigation matters
- researching and drafting legal memoranda and motions
- handling complicated discovery and interviewing witnesses
- preparing and managing cases for mediation and arbitration
- attending conferences, hearings and arbitrations
- handling workplaces investigations

Chelsea graduated magna cum laude from the Thomas R. Kline School of Law at Drexel University. While in law school, she served as a member of the Moot Court Board and as a Lead Editor for the Drexel Law Review, where her note was chosen for publication.

RESULTS

- obtained a complete victory in the Third Circuit after the plaintiff appealed a jury verdict in favor of Temple University; the Third Circuit found that the trial court had not erred by allowing the Stradley Ronon team to introduce at trial evidence discovered after the plaintiff's termination, which was relevant to rebut the plaintiff's trial testimony
- secured a complete defense verdict in favor of Temple University after a five-day jury trial in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania on the plaintiff's claims for race discrimination and violations of the Family and Medical Leave Act
- secured summary judgment for Temple University in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania for an age and disability discrimination matter

- successfully obtained full recovery judgment in federal court arbitration on behalf of a national, commercial real estate property manager, in a breach of property management contract dispute against a multi-tenant commercial property owner
- assisted in obtaining summary judgment for community college on employment discrimination claims by plaintiff who claimed he was discriminated against on the basis of his race, gender, and combined race and gender; drafted brief in opposition to plaintiff's appeal, resulting in affirmance of summary judgment for community college by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit
- assisted in preparing for trial and obtaining favorable settlement of construction dispute on behalf of municipal water authority in connection with restoration project of multi-million gallon water tanks
- researched law, drafted analyses, and prepared for mediation on behalf of a surety in a complex construction dispute involving claims by a subcontractor purportedly arising from performance bonds and payment bonds issued to the project developer
- assisted in successfully defending insurer against significant medical malpractice claim by a patient who developed severe neurological complications following radiation treatment; secured a total defense verdict by contending that the complications were caused by an autoimmune response and not the radiation treatment
- assisted in successfully defending large alumni association against petition for preliminary injunction filed by members seeking to compel association to place them on the ballot for election to the association's governing body
- conducted extensive nationwide research for inclusion in amicus brief to Pennsylvania Supreme Court on behalf of General Assembly, where the court agreed that the laches doctrine barred plaintiffs' challenge to the procedure by which a law was enacted more than 20 years ago
- researched and drafted successful motion to dismiss fraud claims brought against notary arising out of sale of real estate that lacked jurisdiction
- assisted in obtaining settlement of two lawsuits brought against developer challenging the validity of a transfer of commercial property that permitted the client to move forward with large-scale redevelopment project planned for the property
- assisted in obtaining complete dismissal of claims brought against Pennsylvania senator associated with his support of a law requiring arrestees to pay for booking fees; the claims were dismissed with prejudice on the ground of legislative immunity
