Cameron Redfern focuses her practice on complex civil litigation, representing corporate and institutional clients in a range of business, healthcare, and securities litigation matters. Cameron's litigation experience includes drafting and arguing dispositive motions and briefs, taking and defending depositions, and managing e-discovery, in federal and state courts at both the trial and appellate levels.

Cameron graduated cum laude from Temple University Beasley School of Law, where she served as a Lead Research Editor of the Temple Law Review.

During law school, Cameron was a McCleary Law Fellow with the Human Rights Campaign. She also served as a Judicial Intern to the Honorable Theodore McKee in the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. Cameron received the Philadelphia Bar Association's 2018 Public Interest Student of the Year Award and the Captain Robert Miller Knox Award for outstanding contributions to the Temple Law community.

In 2022, Cameron was selected for the Leadership Council on Legal Diversity (LCLD) Pathfinder Program. The Pathfinder Program is designed for attorneys who have a passion and dedication to building diverse professional networks, developing foundational leadership skills and understanding career development strategies.
