Working with clients across a broad array of industries, Melanie Ronen advises on all aspects of employment law, including hiring, promotion, termination, privacy, wage and hour, disability and protected leave, and retaliation and whistleblower issues. She assists with the drafting and review of employment manuals and agreements, ensuring compliance with federal and state employment laws.

Melanie works side by side with employers to provide practical, tailored solutions to the various issues that arise in the workplace. When unavoidable, Melanie defends employers in litigation involving all aspects of employment-related claims.

Melanie handles single-plaintiff and complex employment disputes in state and federal courts and arbitration involving claims related to discrimination, harassment, retaliation, wrongful termination, breach of contract, defamation, trade secret, unfair competition, and wage and hour issues, including class action and Private Attorneys General Act (PAGA) claims.

When complaints arise, Melanie also conducts workplace investigations regarding unlawful or unwanted conduct, including harassment and race, age and gender discrimination. She proactively identifies potential risk and formulates strategies in line with clients' business objectives to mitigate conflict and avoid litigation.

RESULTS

- Succeeded on striking class claims alleging age and gender discrimination brought by a former financial services employee against a broker-dealer in federal court. *
- Preserved a win on a motion for summary judgment on appeal for a multinational financial services company. The action, filed in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Washington, involved an alleged violation of the Washington State Consumer Protection Act. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit affirmed the lower court's decision.*
