Miranda Sturgis focuses her practice on counseling investment companies and their independent board members and investment advisers in connection with various regulatory, compliance and transactional issues. She assists in the representation of clients in various investment management and securities law matters, including preparing regulatory filings; drafting and reviewing registration statements and proxy solicitation materials; researching various securities and corporate law issues; and drafting corporate policies and compliance procedures. Her experience includes assisting in the representation of clients in matters such as the formation, registration and ongoing regulation of investment companies, including multi-manager and sub-advised mutual funds and exchange-traded funds (ETFs). She has advised clients on digital asset-backed exchange-traded products (ETPs), including some of the industry's first spot bitcoin and spot ether ETFs. Miranda also assists in the representation of clients in transactional matters, such as fund mergers and acquisitions.

Miranda received her J.D. from Villanova University School of Law, where she was a staff writer and an associate editor for the Villanova Law Review. During law school, she participated in the Villanova Civil Justice Clinic as a Certified Legal Intern.
